in the Last Hour. New York, May I.—Favorable happenings over the holiday, especially the increasing popularity of the liberty loan and the remarkable April statement of the country's exports, were primary factors in today's further rise of prices. Much of this gain was forfeited, however, in the extensive selling of the last hour.

The chief drawback or adverse influence of the session was again furnished by the Russian situation, which found reflection in a violent break in ruble exchange. Weakness of the motor group and a few other speculative issues also encouraged the short interest.

Michelin Tubes Naturally Hang

INSTEAD of being simply a piece of straight tubing comented at the ends, the Michelin Tube is formed on a circular mandrel in the shape of the inside of the casing. Thus when inflated it is neither stretched on its outer side nor compressed into destructive wrinkles next to the rim. This perfect at gives the Michelin Tube greater durability and practically eliminates danger of pinching the tube.

is still unconvinced that his protege had relinquished his right to the honor he had held since July 7, 1914. The contest itself, with its sensational ending and the crowning of a new leader for the lightweight ranks, is the chief topic of discussion among sporting men. Pollock was as firm in the conviction that Welsh was still lightweight champion as he was the day before the bout and in a statement he gave as his reason for the view. The ex-champion's manager claimed that inasmuch as Welsh was not counted out, either standing up or while on the canvas of the ring, he must still be regarded as the champion, despite the fact that the Welshman was in such a helpless condition when the is still unconvinced that his protege and I don't mind admitting that the Leonard'

have had fatal results.

Polick contends that a count had it been made over the defeated boxer, might have enabled him to weather the storm and complete the ten round journey. Few of those who witnessed the bout, however, are likely to agree with Pollok. On the three occasions when Weish went down before the finish he immediately regained his feet before a count could be started, but as he lay bent over the ring ropes after the third knockdown there was absolutely no necessity for a count over his unconscious form, as was shown when it was necessary for Pollok and his assistants to carry Welsh to his corner.

"When a boxer is down, even though lie is absolutely insensible when he is absolutely insensible insensible in sabsolutely insensible when he is absolutely insensible when he hits the floor, he has the benefit of nine seconds in which to get to his feet, it is a reasonable sub-position that a boxer who is hanging on the ropes, or in other words, still able to be on his feet, or partly on his feet, is in a better physical and mental condition than one who is lying prone on the ground, either insensible or partly so. If the man on the ground is entitled to nine seconds in which to get to his feet, sure-ly one who still retains the perpendicular is entitled to as much.
